

BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE; HOUSE BURNED AUG. 18

Hard luck which has followed the T. W. Shelton family, York Springs R. 2, since moving to Adams county from Baltimore last June, continued Friday evening when fire of unknown origin destroyed the large barn on their property.

On August 18 the interior of the Shelton residence was destroyed following an explosion of an oil stove. Since that time the family had been residing temporarily in a building which was formerly used as a chicken house.

Although lightning accompanied the intermittent showers throughout Adams county Friday night, there was no storm or lightning near the York Springs section at the time the fire was discovered about 11:30 o'clock.

Furniture Lost

Joel Griest, who lives near York Springs, was returning to his home when he saw the fire. He notified Hillary Kennedy and they went to the scene of the fire to find the building almost completely destroyed. No call was placed for a fire company as the structure was beyond saving.

Six tons of hay and a quantity of straw were lost as well as a quantity of furniture which had just been secured by the Sheltons and was being stored temporarily in the barn until the family moved into a residence nearby which they recently rented. A hogpen was also destroyed.

A tractor and a calf were rescued from the barn.

The estimate of the damage was not available and it could not be learned if insurance was carried.

Some time ago the Sheltons lost two valuable horses.

COUNTY SEES JAP OFFICIALS ON IE SHIMA

An interesting account of some of his experiences in the Pacific theater of operations is revealed by Sgt. Roland W. Kime, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kime, Benderville, Pa. Kime is a member of the 343rd Airdrome Squadron, 3rd Air Commando Group.

His letter follows:

"Now that censorship has become somewhat relaxed, I'll give you a chance to see how well your guesses match up with actual facts.

"We left San Francisco last year on November 6. It took us about 22 days on a zig-zag course to pull into Hollandia, in New Guinea. Here we picked up two destroyer escorts to take us up to Leyte.

"This took about three days.

"On December 1 'ducks' took us off the ship and put us in the mud south of Tacloban. We remained in this area between Tacloban and Dulog until we left by air for Luzon, about the middle of January. Here we set up midway between Dagupan and Mangaldan which are about three miles apart.

Receives Pass

"From here I got the two-day pass and went south as far as Tarlac, between Lingayen and Manila. When we moved again some time in March it was to fly north to Laoag, located in the province of Ilocos Norte. Our group headquarters were in San Nicolas. Both towns are comparatively large.

"When I hurt my leg and was evacuated I flew in one of our ships to 'Goatee' strip at Lingayen. The 107th Station hospital is only a mile from this strip.

"'Honey' was the name of the strip at Mangaldan. At Laoag it was called 'Nightclub.'

"And now we are here at Ie Shima, just off the tip of Okinawa, which is visible for miles. As you know Ie Shima is now famous for two reasons. First because Ernie Pyle was killed here by a sniper, and because here the Jap emissaries first landed.

Memorials For Pyle

"Ernie Pyle is buried in the center of the small cemetery here. A black plaque has been placed on his white cross. His larger memorial is placed at the spot where he was shot down. A white stone with a bronze plaque stands on a grassy plot about ten feet square and built up about two feet.

"What used to be a well-kept lawn of grass covering the plot has been worn almost bare by the G.I.'s who keep visiting the spot continually. Every one wants their picture taken standing by the plaque which reads: 'Here the 77th Division lost a buddy.'—Simple words honoring a great man who wanted to live simply.

115 Persons Attend Bible Class Dinner

One hundred fifteen members and guests of the Men's Bible class of St. James Lutheran Sunday school attended the banquet Friday evening at the Mt. Joy parish house where a chicken dinner was served.

The Rev. Robert B. Rau, who previously has served as a guest teacher for the class on several occasions, was the speaker. The Rev. Dr. Ralph R. Gresh led the singing with Richard B. Shade as accompanist. There was also special music. Guest teachers in attendance were introduced by the class president, William I. Shields, Richard C. Lighter, chairman of the entertainment committee, presided. H. T. Stauffer headed the dinner committee.

M'KNIGHTSTOWN MAN ESCAPES IN FREAK MISHAP

Death brushed too close for comfort to Kenneth Wetzel, 21-year-old McKnightstown R. D. 1, truck driver, Friday, at shortly after 11 a. m., when he attempted to stop for a traffic light at Market street and Highland avenue in York and his truckload of locust posts shifted, crushing the cab of the trailer truck and falling on the roof of a sedan in front of him. No one was injured in the accident.

The back of the cab, in which the driver was alone, was pushed to within a few inches of the steering wheel by the impact of the load. The driver was saved by being thrown against a door handle which opened and flung him to the side while he was still holding the wheel trying to keep his truck from ramming the car in front of him.

The roof of the car in front, driven by Edwin Bartolett, Upper Darby, was badly dented when a large part of the log load fell on it, but neither Bartolett nor two women who were in the front seat with him, were injured. His car was able to proceed from the scene under its own power.

According to Wetzel, two cars ahead of him had stopped at the traffic signal, and when he also applied his brakes he felt the load begin to slide toward the front of the trailer. He released his brakes then, and swung slightly toward the middle of the road in an effort to avoid ramming Bartolett, but the attempt failed. He struck the sedan, which was pushed into the first car of the line, driven by William A. Anders, New Midway, Md. With the impact, the load of some four cords of wood was shoved over the left side of the cab onto the roof of the Bartolett car.

Fair Crowd Delayed

Damage to the tractor cab was estimated at about $500 by C. B. Plank, Biglerville, owner of the vehicle, who was on the scene shortly after the accident. Officer Ralph Shultz, West York policeman, said that no charges would be made. The accident was blamed on the construction of the truck, rather than any negligence on the part of the driver or the driver. A witness, Charles Wolfrays, said that the driver was not traveling too fast a few minutes before the collision.

Officer Shultz said that a sheet metal protector at the front of the trailer and behind the cab, was only spot welded to the trailer body, instead of continuously welded, and that this point broke under the log load. He remarked, however, that the logs, loaded crossways on the truck, should have been secured in place by chains.

Damage to the Bartolett car was (Please Turn to Page Two)

MAJ. JOHN HOLLINGER TO BE LIONS' SPEAKER

Major John C. Hollinger, new professor of military science and tactics at Gettysburg college, will be the speaker at the dinner meeting of the Gettysburg Lions club Monday evening at 6:15 o'clock at Woodlawn park, Lincolnway west.

This will be the last Lions meeting for the season at Woodlawn park. On September 24 a ladies night meeting will be held at Mt. Joy Lutheran parish house and on the first Monday in October the club will begin holding its weekly sessions in town.

Collect Scrap Here Sunday

Firemen will conduct their last scrap collection of the war Sunday afternoon beginning at 1 o'clock.

Householders are urged to tie up waste paper or place in cartons and have it on the curb at 1 o'clock to expedite the collection which usually requires the greater part of the afternoon.

The government has appealed to all householders to give all their waste paper in this final effort.

DIRECTORS FOR CHURCH WOMEN MEET FRIDAY

Mrs. Ralph R. Gresh, president of the Gettysburg Council of Church Women, presided over a meeting of the board of directors of the Council Friday evening in the parlors of St. James Lutheran church at 7 o'clock. Following the devotions conducted by Mrs. Gresh, the minutes of the last meeting, May 18, were read and approved.

The new year for the council began with this meeting and Mrs. Gresh, who was reelected president at the May meeting, announced her committee chairmen. The board of directors voted approval of a plan by which the president and the chairman of each committee will select the members of the committees.

Mrs. Harold V. March was named chairman of evangelism; Mrs. Dunning Idle, Sr., missionary education; Mrs. Donald Myers, chairman of Christian social education and action, and Mrs. C. T. Ziegler, chairman of publicity.

Plan Activities

Tentative activities were announced by Mrs. Idle and Mrs. Myers for future programs. Mrs. Myers will have charge of World Community Day observance here in November and Mrs. Idle introduced plans for an interdenominational study course to last approximately six weeks on foreign missions.

The members approved a change in the constitution, to be amended to read "the vice presidents shall be a key woman from each organization" instead of "from each church in the town." The secretary was asked to send notices to each organization in the member churches asking for approval of an amendment to change the constitution.

Mrs. Gresh told the group that, during the summer, she had a communication from headquarters in Harrisburg, the Women's Department of the Pennsylvania Council of Churches, stating that a key woman should be selected from Adams county to act as a representative on the state board. The members of the board of directors unanimously chose Mrs. Gresh as that representative.

Seek Linen Supplies

Reference was made to the religious census which is to begin on Monday with representatives from each church making a survey of the church and unchurched.

Mrs. Gresh read a letter from the state council telling of a special appeal for supplies of linens for approximately 2,000 ministers' families in France, Holland, Belgium and Italy. The state council has asked for the privilege of providing for 150 ministers' families and are asking each council to provide a minimum number of family units, "in order that by our sharing we will be showing our Christian concern for their need." The board members agreed to supply enough articles to fill two units for shipment to the United States warehouse, at New Windsor, Md., before October 15. The letter stated that there is such a scarcity of sheets and other bed clothing abroad that persons entering a hospital must furnish their own sheets, pillow cases and blankets.

Mrs. Gresh invited all interested persons to the sixth annual convention of the Women's Missionary (Please Turn to Page 2)

COUPLE WEDS HERE SUNDAY

Cpl. Ronald Weigle, who recently returned from 25 months service in England with the Army Air Force, and son of Mrs. Caroline Weigle, formerly of Gettysburg and now of Waynesboro, and Miss Mary Wilcox, daughter of Mrs. Sara Tobias, of Muncy, will be married at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon in St. James Lutheran church by the Rev. Dr. Ralph R. Gresh.

The bride will wear white marquisette with finger tip veil and carry an arm bouquet of white roses.

Miss Caroline Lumpp, of Williamsport, the bridesmaid, will wear blue net and carry an arm bouquet of yellow mixed flowers.

Ellis Weigle, brother of the bridegroom, will be the best man.

Vorhees Seals, of Carlisle, will give the bride away.

Following the wedding there will be a reception at Mrs. Smith's restaurant after which the bridal couple will go to New York and Niagara Falls on their honeymoon.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of the Scotland School, at Scotland, Pa. Miss Wilcox is now employed by the Grit Publishing Company, Williamsport.

Cpl. Weigle has been in service for 27 months. He returned this week from England on the Queen Elizabeth. After a 30-day furlough he will report to Tampa, Florida.

19 War Veterans Believed Killed In Transport's Crash

Kansas City, Sept. 15 (AP)—Twenty-two persons, including 19 veterans of European battlefronts, were believed killed today as a C-47 army transport plane crashed in flames 14 seconds after leaving Fairfax airport.

Only three of the 24 military personnel aboard the plane were removed alive from the flaming wreckage and one of those, Sgt. Bernard C. Tucker, Etna, Calif., died at a Kansas City hospital. A European overseas veteran, he was being flown to California for discharge. A survivor said all three members of the crew perished.

Others brought to the hospital were Sgt. Ora D. de Long, whose papers indicated he is related to G. L. de Long, Barstow, Calif., and

ALL AVAILABLE VETERANS' AID TO BE REVIEWED

A public meeting will be held next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the court house here when representatives of the U. S. Veterans Bureau and the Farm Security Administration at Washington will come here to explain financial assistance available to veterans under recent legislation.

The meeting has been arranged jointly by O. H. Benson, chairman of the Farm Security Administration committee for Adams county; Joseph Smith, chairman for the GI certifying committee for the county, and Clarence A. Myers, FSA supervisor for the York-Adams district.

The veterans' program as it is outlined in the GI Bill of Rights for financial aid in purchasing or financing the purchase of a home or business or equipment for a farm or business will be outlined. Provisions for veterans' aid for special training and education also will be described.

Many Groups Invited

The assistance that the Farm Security Administration stands ready to render veterans through the Department of Agriculture will be explained with special attention to the means by which an ex-serviceman can be helped in the purchase of a farm or stock and equipment for farming. The FSA rehabilitation fund will be referred to and its availability for veteran and non-veteran farmers will be reviewed.

All persons in the county who are interested are welcome to attend the meeting. All banks of the county are urged to send representatives and attorneys, veterans' organization officers, farm organization members, employment service officials, Public Assistance board members and their staff, Red Cross workers, ministers, educators and businessmen are being specially invited to attend the session.

O. H. Benson, chairman of the FSA committee, said today that many confusing reports are current about the aid that is available to veterans from various sources and that there will be an opportunity to ask questions next Thursday and help clear up any misunderstandings.

Will Close For Church Holiday

In a display advertisement in today's issue of The Gettysburg Times, Anna Bierer's shop, Morris Gittlin, Harris Brothers, Eli Lock and Mares Sherman announce that their business places will be closed Monday in observance of the Day of Atonement, a Jewish holiday.

Officers 'Pleased' At Guard Showing

Lt. Col. Harry G. Banzhoff, commander of the First Cavalry Squadron of the State Guard, who headed a group of officers who conducted a state inspection of Troop C of Adams county at the state armory here Friday evening, said he was "very well pleased" with the appearance of the county unit.

Seventy-two members of the Troop and their three officers stood inspection by Colonel Banzhoff; Major Edward A. Towne, executive officer of the 1st Cavalry Squadron, and Capt. Ehrman Mitchell, plans and training officer for the squadron.

TO SPONSOR DINNER

The Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, will sponsor a dinner Wednesday evening, Sept. 26, at 6:30 o'clock in the Hanover YWCA gymnasium for the Lutheran ministers and their wives of Hanover, Littlestown, New Oxford and Abbottstown, two laymen from each congregation and their wives, and students from the Seminary. The dinner will be served by members of the Joan of Arc club of the YWCA.

MacArthur Tells Japs They're Not Equal Of Allies "In Any Way"; Homma Under Arrest

By The Associated Press

LOCAL SAILOR FINDS BIG RATS ON LARGEST SUB

Motor Machinist Mate First Class Daniel E. Davis, husband of Mrs. D. E. Davis, formerly Miss Gladys Taughinbaugh, daughter of G. Edward Taughinbaugh, Hunterstown, is believed to be the only countian in submarine service on duty with the occupation fleet in Tokyo bay.

Davis is aboard the largest submarine in the world, the 5,500-ton Jap sub which Davis and his mates took over at sea after the Japanese surrender. He had been aboard the U. S. sub "Pipefish" and on September 4 completed a six-year enlistment in submarine service. He served his entire time during the war in the Pacific war zone.

To Return Soon

Davis, who has not seen his 16-month-old son, Donald Eugene Davis, expects to return to the States in the early future.

The following excerpts were taken from his recent letter to Mrs. Davis:

"I am in Tokyo bay. Was with the Third Fleet that landed first. We took over three subs, except for some midget ones.

"I am now on a Jap submarine, the largest submarine in the world. It is 5,500 tons. Our modern subs are only about 1,750 tons.

"This boat is filthy, crummy lousy. It is the worst I have ever seen. There are thousands of rats, some a foot long. We still have the Japs aboard, about 225 of them, and they are cleaning up the boat. And what a tough job it is, trying to make them understand what we want done. I would be all right if I could speak or read Japanese.

Sub Well Stocked

"As soon as we get this sub in running condition, and cleaned up, we are starting back to the States. I imagine it will be in a couple of weeks.

"My enlistment is up today (September 4).

"I never saw so much whisky (sakaki) and rum in all my life as the Japs had aboard this boat when we took over, out at sea.

"This sub also has a hangar and carries several planes aboard and no one knows anything about it before.

"At this base, in Tokyo bay, we found that it had not been bombed too badly.

"There are about 30 Japs standing in front of and staring at me. They can't understand what I'm doing.

"This paper is the only available supply on board. It is Japanese paper so I would suggest that you burn it after you have read the letter."

Tokyo, Sept. 15 (AP)—General MacArthur's headquarters bluntly informed Japan today that she was not an equal of the Allies in any way and would have to quit acting like one.

While four more of Japan's wanted big-shot militarists surrendered to Japanese police, Col. Donald Hoover, head of censorship in MacArthur's counterintelligence office, called in the heads of Japan's press and radio, told them that their distorted stories of the occupation must cease forthwith and that Japan was "a defeated enemy which had not yet demonstrated the right to a place among civilized nations."

U. S. To Censor Domei News

Hoover announced that the Domei agency, suspended yesterday because of distortions and bad faith, would be permitted to resume operations only on a limited domestic scale and under 100 per cent U. S. censorship but that Domei and any others who transgressed again would be closed.

Meanwhile Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma, onetime terror of the Philippines, which he conquered in 1942, and his successor, Lt. Gen. Shigenori Kuroda, drove to a suburban Japanese police station and surrendered to await questioning by the Americans.

Homma glibly asserted that he had not ordered the Bataan death march and that it wasn't so bad, anyhow, brushing off the proven horrors of that cruel herding of captured Americans on Luzon. He acknowledged, however, that as the commander he was responsible for acts of his subordinates.

Kuroda, evidently not trying to be humorous, remarked, "We lost the war—there must have been some mistake."

Looking over the Tokyo and Yokohama industrial bomb damage, he exclaimed, "terrible!"

Both generals were high on MacArthur's list of men wanted for questioning and possible trial as war criminals.

Col. Kingoro Hashimoto, the man generally blamed for ordering the bombing of the American gunboat Panay in the Yangtze river in 1937, but wanted by MacArthur as a member of the Black Dragon terrorist society, surrendered to United States Eighth Army headquarters. Japanese sources reported.

At the same time Yoshitaka Ueda offered himself at Eighth Army headquarters. He was number 24 on General MacArthur's list although his activities were unknown even to many of the Japanese, he is credited with being the master mind of the imperialistic Japanese geopolitical bureau.

On the MacArthur list, he had been called Ueda Yashitake, with his names transposed, spelled differently and listed only as a government official.

The No. 1 man, Hideki Tojo, is in custody at an Army evacuation camp, recovering from a bungled suicide attempt. Yesterday four more of his "Pearl Harbor cabinet," presented themselves at Eighth Army headquarters in Yokohama.

Get Tojo Henchmen

They included two of Tojo's closest henchmen in enforcing his dictatorial reign—Lt. Gen. Teiichi Suzuki, former minister without portfolio as well as president of the influential cabinet planning board, and Okimori Kaya, former finance minister.

The other former ministers surrendering were Michio Iwamura, justice, and Sekiya Ino, agriculture and forestry.

Another who appeared was Shozo Murata, one time Japanese ambassador to the puppet Philippine republic.

It was understood Jose P. Laurel, puppet president of the Philippines, will be taken to Yokohama shortly by plane from an unspecified point. Among men on the wanted list turned over by the Japanese were an army captain, Dr. Tokuda, suspected of conducting death-resulting experiments on Allied prisoners of war at Shinagawa camp. The camp commander also was surrendered.

Without explanation, one name was removed from the list. It was that of Koki Hirota, Japan's foreign minister who signed the anti-comintern pact, and has been suspected as a member of the Black Dragons, a terrorist society.

Homma's Alibi

The once arrogant Homma, who brusquely dictated to General Wainwright the surrender of the Philippines after Bataan and Corregidor fell, had a brief explanation for the "death march."

Asked why the surrendered, bedraggled remnants were compelled to march for days and nights by foot to prison camps, during which they were denied food and water, were beaten and some killed, Homma said:

"The Japanese Army lacked conveniences at that time."

TO COMMISSION 60 WORKERS IN TOWN SURVEY

On Sunday evening at 7 o'clock a special service will be held in the Presbyterian church when the persons who will conduct the religious canvass of the town next week will be formally commissioned. The Rev. Dr. Dwight F. Putman, pastor of Christ Lutheran church, will bring the message and will outline the purposes and benefits of the religious census to be taken under the sponsorship of the Gettysburg Ministerium.

The Rev. Harold V. March and the Rev. William N. Zabler, the Ministerium committee in charge of the survey, have made assignments covering every street and section of town, dividing the work among the approximately 60 workers named jointly by the pastors and "key women" of the local Council of Church Women. As far as possible, the assignments were made to sections of the town close to the respective canvassers. The workers will cover their territories in pairs. Alternate solicitors have been named.

To Classify Data

The solicitors will record on cards the information they gather concerning the religious affiliations or preferences of the members of each household. These cards will be classified according to membership or church preference and distributed among the various pastors after the canvass has been completed.

The committee in charge has invited "all persons interested" in the canvass and especially those whose names have been submitted as canvassers to attend the service Sunday evening.

"An appeal is made for all families of Gettysburg to co-operate with the canvassers and make the work pleasant for these volunteer workers as well as all concerned," the Rev. Mr. Zabler said today.

BULLETINS

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP)—The Senate passed and sent to the House legislation making permanent the rank of the seven men who now hold commissions as five-star generals and admirals. The bill affects Generals of the Army George C. Marshall, Douglas MacArthur, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Henry H. Arnold, and Fleet Admirals William D. Leahy, Ernest J. King and Chester W. Nimitz.

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP)—Marine officers and enlisted men who have 40 discharge points are henceforth exempt from overseas assignment.

Philadelphia, Sept. 15 (AP)—Fritz Kuhn, former boss of the German-American band, will be deported to his native Germany today, the U. S. Immigration service has announced. Kuhn will leave Ellis Island, N. Y., at 5 p. m. aboard the freighter Winchester Victory, immigration officials stated.

Ominato Anchorage, Japan, Sept. 15 (AP)—Lt. Col. James P. S. Devereux, heroic defender of Wake island, reached the escort carrier Hoggatt bay here today—the first step of his dreamed-of return to America.

Philadelphia, Sept. 15 (AP)—Virtually all shipping in the port of Philadelphia was tied up today after 500 tugboat employees left their jobs in what a union spokesman described as a protest against failure of tug owners to grant back pay.

To Organize AMVET Post Here Monday

An organization meeting for the formation of a local post of the AMVETS, open to American veterans of World War II, will be held at the American Legion building Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

This is the second gathering called here by the veterans' group which is being organized throughout the state and nation. A preliminary gathering was conducted at the Hotel Gettysburg early last month when the groundwork for the first Adams county post of the AMVETS was laid.

FEARS YEAR IS NOT ENOUGH TO CLEAN UP JAPAN

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)
Lt. Gen. Robert Elcheberger, commander of the U. S. Eighth Army occupation forces in Japan, says "if the Japanese continue to act as they are acting, within a year this thing (the occupation) should be washed up"—explaining that "when an insular country loses its land, sea and air power, and is without raw materials and has big countries sitting on its flanks, it can't be much of a threat."

That's an encouraging statement, but probably the general would advise us to bide a wee before accepting such an early termination as a certainty. We have a titanic job to do there if the edict of Potsdam is carried out. This decree that Allied forces should occupy Nippon until certain objectives had been achieved, and among them were these:

Huge Job Ahead
Destruction of Japan's war-making power. Complete disarmament. "Stern justice" for all war criminals. "Freedom of speech and religion, and of thought, as well as respect for the fundamental human rights, shall be established." There's a lot more of it, but that's plenty to get on with.

General Wainwright, hero of Corregidor, speaking in New York yesterday demanded that there be neither "a soft occupation nor a soft peace." He declared "the Japanese are not sorry for what they have done to countless thousands in the populations of countries they have overrun" and "they are not sorry for the torture they have inflicted on American soldiers."

With striking coincidence, General MacArthur stated in Tokyo that the surrender terms "aren't soft and they won't be applied in kid glove fashion." He didn't venture to estimate how long it would take to enforce the surrender terms—but one finds it difficult to escape the stern logic of the warning by Wainwright, who has suffered so much from Japanese barbarism.

Changing the nature of the Japs is an educational job. Can it be done in as short a time as twelve months? If we do it we shall be magicians.

NEW STORM WARNINGS UP IN FLORIDA

Miami, Fla., Sept. 15 (AP)—Hurricane warnings were hoisted along Florida's west coast northward from the Florida Keys to Naples today as a dangerous storm that battered the Bahamas with winds of more than 100 miles bore down on the Keys and threatened to sweep across the low lying chain of islands into the Gulf of Mexico.

The Miami weather bureau in an advisory at 5:30 a. m. (EWT) ordered extension of the hurricane warnings that have been flying along the peninsula's east coast southward from Fort Lauderdale along the Keys to dry Tortugas since yesterday.

At that time the storm, paced by winds of more than 100 miles near the center and winds of hurricane force over a considerable area, was located about 200 miles southeast of Miami, and was continuing its west northwesterward course.

Wind Is Increasing
The weather bureau said that "most severe winds" will prevail over the Keys, and that winds already had begun to increase along the southeast coast of Florida and the island chain.

They will continue to increase over southern Florida as the core of the storm approaches, and will reach hurricane force from Fort Lauderdale and Naples southward this afternoon, the advisory said.

"The center is expected to reach the Keys by early this afternoon after which a slow turn to northward is probable," Chief Forecaster Grady Norton predicted.

Before dawn most residents of the Keys, mindful of the 1935 blow that cost more than 600 lives, had sped northward by bus lines, army buses, or private car to homestead on the mainland, or south to shelter at Key West.

"Young Cyclone" Strikes Rockton

Rockton, Pa., Sept. 15 (AP)—A wind and rain storm which residents likened to a "young cyclone" smote this Clearfield county area last night, leveling buildings and doing other property damage.

The storm was reported to have struck most violently on the chicken farm of J. W. Holloper, knocking down buildings housing 2,500 chickens and drowning many of the fowl. Holloper himself suffered minor injuries.

A rural "election house" near here was blown to the ground.

At Punxsutawney, rain halted a high school football game at the end of the third quarter, leaving Punxsutawney and Clearfield tied, 0-0.

Social Happenings

Phone Gettysburg 640 or Biglerville 8

Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Steel, Washington, D. C., and David Lytle, Philadelphia, were recent guests of Miss Reba Adams and Miss Irene Wolfe, Water street.

Members of the Gettysburg WCTU met Friday evening with Mrs. Cora Berkey, West Broadway. The topic for the meeting was "Publicity and Literature." Articles were read stating that Pennsylvania state liquor store receipts in July amounted to $13,000,000 and attributing the shortage of canning sugar to the "large quantities of that food that were diverted to alcoholic uses." A social hour was followed by adjournment to meet in October with Mrs. Milton Remmel.

Plans were announced for the county WCTU convention on Sunday afternoon at Mt. Joy Lutheran church. About 100 members of the local unit are expected to attend.

Miss Betty Britcher has returned to her home on Stevens street after spending a week with relatives and friends in Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Sheely have as guests over the week-end at their home on Springs avenue their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Donald C. 50,000 FORD WORKERS IDLE THRU STRIKES

Detroit, Sept. 15 (AP)—Supply-crippling strikes today halted all production in Ford motor company plants throughout the nation, throwing 50,000 Ford employees out of work.

The shutdown was announced yesterday at the close of a tense day in Detroit's turbulent swing from war to peace. These were the developments:

The Ford company, halting all production of automobiles, trucks, tractors and engines, tossed the blame for the shutdown on strikes against plants which supply Ford with parts.

Answering by cracking down hard on the striking workers of the Kelsey-Hayes wheel Co., principal supplier of Ford parts, the United Automobile Workers (CIO) made its first move toward disciplining wildcat strike.

Ask 30 Per Cent Boost

In return, the union pitched an ultimatum at the automobile industry, demanding a 30 per cent wage increase for their members. Backing its demand with the threat of an industry-wide labor blockade, the union chose for its test case the vast General Motors corporation.

Layoffs of Ford workers, 40,000 of whom were employed in plants in the Detroit area, pushed to nearly 80,000 the number of workmen forced into idleness by strikes and resultant layoffs.

Also on strike were 10,000 workers at the Ford Motor company of Canada at Windsor, Ont.; 6,500 at Hudson Motor Car company, 3,100 at Murray Corporation of America and more than 4,000 in eight other plants.

It was the second time within a week that Ford workers were sent home because of the Kelsey-Hayes stoppage. Last week nearly 30,000 were laid off. They were recalled last Monday when Ford located new parts sources.

"Unauthorized Strikes"

Ford plants were forced to close because of "crippling and unauthorized strikes" against suppliers said Henry Ford II, executive vice president.

"These continued outbreaks by irresponsible labor groups," Young Ford asserted, were impeding the progress of reconversion.

Naming Percy Llewellyn as administrator of the Kelsey-Hayes unit, local 174, the UAW-CIO executive board meeting at Flint in effect told the 4,500 strikers to get back on the job. The board empowered Llewellyn, a former president of Ford local 600, UAW-CIO, to take over affairs of the union and to call a meeting of the strikers this week-end.

R. J. Thomas, UAW president, said the union would negotiate the dispute—the discharge of three minor union officials—after work was resumed.

Widespread Effect

The union, a spokesman pointed out, was determined to tolerate no further wildcat strikes.

Estimating that with "our 50,000 men, more than 125,000 people in this country will suffer because of the shutdown," Young Ford said there wasn't a "city or town that won't be adversely affected."

No direct comment on the Ford shutdown was forthcoming from top officials of the union.

Although all production has ceased in Ford plants, still at work were maintenance men, those employed on reconversion and office workers. Before the layoffs, the firm employed some 109,000 persons.

1,200 Pairs Of Nylon Sold Out In 2 Hours

Dallas, Sept. 15 (AP)—It was a busy two hours for clerks in a Dallas department store, while the Nylon stocking supply of 1,200 pairs completely disappeared.

The two-block line outside the store was headed by a man in quest of size nine.

"I don't care if they were made before the Civil War," said one woman. "I'm that tired of stockings that run up and down my legs."

Officials said the hose were the first brought to retail in the nation since the war ended.

Receipts In August From Fags $1,480,763

Harrisburg, Sept. 15 (AP)—Receipts from Pennsylvania's two-cent tax on cigarettes rose sharply in August to $1,480,763 or nearly a quarter-million more than those of $1,231,826 in July.

The Revenue department said today the increase brought the total raised by the tax well above the $1,250,000 considered the normal return from the levy even in pre-war days when cigarette shortages were unheard of.

The increase, however, does not entirely reflect increased consumption, since it is paid by jobbers and not directly by consumers, it was explained.

Cigarette tax payments in June, the first month the wartime shortage of smokes started to ease, totaled $1,119,000.

estimated at from $400 to $500. The Anders car, at the front of the line, was damaged to the extent of about $125, where it was hit in the rear by Bartoletti's car.

Traffic on the Market street intersection swollen with fair-bound cars, was snarled for over an hour while wreckers attempted to move the crushed truck and the logs which were strewn over half the highway.

On the scene, as well as Officer Shultz, was Pvt. George J. Evanko, Pennsylvania State Police, who was sent from the Gettysburg barracks to help with protection during the fair.

The job of moving the truck which took over an hour was complicated when it was found that booster brakes on the tractor had jammed automatically during the accident. Several of the logs had also rolled under the wheels of the truck and had to be moved before the small wrecker could budge the crippled giant. Loading the logs on a substitute truck was completed by 3:15 p. m., and county road cleaners removed the last debris by about 4 p. m.

Mr. Plank, owner of the truck, said that the load was bound from Gettysburg to West Chester, where the posts were to be used in farm fences.

Hopes For World Agreement On Oil

New York, Sept. 15 (AP)—Ralph T. Zook of Bradford, Pa., head of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, predicted that if the Anglo-American oil conference, to begin next week in London, achieves a satisfactory treaty, it may lead to an agreement embracing all oil-producing nations of the world.

Before he boarded a plane for London yesterday, Zook expressed "hope that this conference will accomplish its part in bringing about an orderly offering of oil in world trade."

He said the American delegation, which included Secretary Ickes and other high government and oil officials, "will watch the proceedings to see that nothing is injected into the agreement detrimental to the American domestic picture."

The conference is expected to continue three weeks. The Americans are offering a treaty drafted by the U. S. State Department with advice of leaders of the American oil industry.

SOVIET UNION ASKS CONTROL OF DARDANELLES

By FLORA LEWIS

London, Sept. 15 (AP)—A reliable report that the Soviet union has made territorial demands in the Mediterranean area considerably beyond anything the United States and Britain had anticipated was interpreted in diplomatic quarters here today as an indication of Russia's determination to become a Mediterranean power.

The Soviet proposals arose, authoritative sources said, during a discussion of Italy's colonies by the Big Five council of Foreign ministers yesterday.

Diplomats speculated that the Russian demand referred to the strategic Dodecanese islands strung across the entrance to the Aegean Sea and guarding the approaches to the Dardanelles.

The report of the surprising Russian move came shortly before the council issued a communique announcing that all nations which warred against Italy would be asked to submit in writing their peace treaty proposals.

Reshuffle Power

The establishment of Russian influence in the Mediterranean would reshuffle power positions in that area, already a source of Anglo-French maneuvering.

Developments already confronting the foreign ministers on Russian Mediterranean aims include:

1—The Russians are demanding increased control of the Dardanelles which belong to Turkey.

2—The Russians asked and received full participation in the International administration of Tangier.

—The situation in the Russian occupied part of Iran is becoming increasingly difficult.

4—The Russians are insisting on primary influence in the Balkans and a crisis which makes the Greek government's position tenuous is brewing in Athens.

The Big Five foreign ministers were scheduled to meet again this afternoon and may hold another session Sunday.

British and American plans focus mainly on returning control of most Italian colonies to Italy with international supervision.

ficials. What made this history making occasion so interesting for me was being able to hear it broadcast over the radio and to see what he was talking of at the same time.

"As the commentator described the formation of P-38s, they were almost directly over us.

"They described the B-25s which were close on either side of the two white ships. Two rescue boats were the only other planes in the air, a B-17 and a Catalina. Thousands of G.I.'s lined up to watch the Japs come in, and taxi to the end of the strip.

"The Japs were met by a General, given instructions, and a few minutes later had boarded a large C-54 standing close by. Soon afterwards it took off for Manila. The Jap crews stayed behind.

"On the return trip to Japan one of the planes was delayed overnight when the brakes didn't hold and it ran into a ditch.

North Wales Man Sinks Relief Ship

Wash., Sept. 15 (AP)—The navy disclosed today that the man who sank the Japanese relief ship Awa Maru last April 1 was Commander Charles E. Loughlin of North Wales, Pa., one of the outstanding heroes of the service.

Torpedoes from his submarine, the Queenfish, sent the Awa Maru down while she was 40 miles off course and unlighted. She was carrying relief supplies to Allied nationals in Japanese hands and had "safe conduct."

DELONE LOSES OPENING GRID CONTEST 14-6

Two touchdowns in the second period enabled the Harrisburg Catholic high school football team to score a 14 to 6 victory over the Delone Catholic High eleven, of McSherrystown, in the opening game of the season for both teams Friday night at Harrisburg. Despite threatening weather, a crowd of more than 4,000 fans turned out for the contest.

Largely through the brilliant punting of Lou Filippelli, Harrisburg Catholic High halfback, the Harrisburg gridders managed to move into scoring position on both occasions on which it scored. They then had to stave off McSherrystown's attack in the second half. Although the Delone Catholic team never entered Harrisburg territory until early in the third period, the visiting Squires gave a good account of themselves in trying to narrow the margin built up by Coach Ralph Farina's lads.

Freundel Scores
On an exchange of punts late in the first period, Harrisburg Catholic gained possession on the McSherrystown team's 22-yard stripe. Five more yards were lost by Delone on an offside penalty and a forward-lateral pass play, with Dick Nazay, Tony Rados and Tony Blazina handling the ball, netted a first down on the McSherrystown 13. In two line plays just before the first period ended, Rados advanced to the 4-yard line.

As play started in the second period, Jack Freundel made a first down on the 2-yard mark, after which he plumed across for the first six-pointer. On a placement, Filippelli added the extra point.

Quick kicks for good distances by Filippelli again in the second period helped the Crusaders to force the McSherrystown lads back until they were forced to kick from behind their own goal line. Taking a punt on Delone's 35-yard line, the locals then went down the field for their second touchdown, aided by a pass from Rados to Blazina, which brought a first down on the Delone 17. A lateral pass from Rados to Blazina made it first down again on McSherrystown's 5, but the play was recalled because of the intended lateral being tossed forward.

Score On Pass
However, after time was called, Rados dropped back and heaved an aerial to Bob Cunjak on the goal line for the six-pointer. Filippelli again converted from placement.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
New York, Sept. 15 (AP)—Charley Trippi, the transplanted Ohioan who'll do his football-carrying for the third air force this season, plans to return to the University of Georgia for one year of football after he gets out of the army, then he'll sign with the Chicago Cardinals. . . Trippi feels he owes the college that much for what it has done for him. . . That offers a sharp contrast to the unidentified athlete the pro footballers tell about. . . When he was offered a scholarship by a southern college, this boy demanded one for his fiancée, too. . . After a year or so, the boy went into the army while the girl went on through college. . . When he came out, the college wanted him back, but the athlete replied that he now had a family to support and thought it was time to make some real dough playing football. . . "Besides," he explained, "My wife got her degree and I think that's enough education for one family."

Interstate League
(By The Associated Press)
Rain forced postponement of the Interstate baseball league's post-season playoff series last (Friday) night and left the league champion Lancaster Red Roses and the Allentown Cardinals still holding a 2-1 edge in the competition.

Wilmington will face Allentown under the lights tonight in the Cardinal ballpark, while the Roses meet the Trenton Spartans in Trenton.

Baseball's big series of 1945 is at hand as Detroit invades Washington for a vital five-game set that should determine the American league winner.

If either the Tigers or the Senators, who trail the leaders by only a half game, can sweep the series or take four of the contests, the race will be over for all practical purposes.

Neither side can afford to hold back a thing in the season's first real crucial man-to-man test although Detroit's list of "cripples" includes Hank Greenberg, Eddie Mayo and Hal Newhouse. All three may see action in today's double-header but none of the trio is at his peak.

Tight Squeaks
Both contenders had tight squeaks yesterday, the Tigers downing Philadelphia, 1-0, in a game cut to five innings by rain and decided by one lucky run. Washington had to come up with three in the last of the ninth to trim Cleveland, 6-5.

Just when the Senators' fans had given up on their club, trailing Cleveland, 5-3, with one out and nobody on in the ninth, the challengers started to rally. Joe Kuhel's triple, two singles, a walk, and Al Chocki's error tied the score. Then reliever Pete Carter walked George Case with the bases loaded to lose the game.

St. Louis swept a three-game set from Boston, 4-1, tightening their grip on third place via Jack Miller's five-hit chucking. A New York-Chicago series finale was washed out by the books.

The two losses suffered by the St. Louis Cardinals at the hands of Leo Durocher's Brooklyn Dodgers, 7-3 and 6-1, can doom the Red Birds' hopes for the national flag. Vic Lombardi and Hal Gregg did the chucking, dropping St. Louis three and one-half games back of Chicago.

TIGERS, NATS OPEN CRUCIAL SERIES TODAY

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Baseball's big series of 1945 is at hand as Detroit invades Washington for a vital five-game set that should determine the American league winner.

If either the Tigers or the Senators, who trail the leaders by only a half game, can sweep the series or take four of the contests, the race will be over for all practical purposes.

Neither side can afford to hold back a thing in the season's first real crucial man-to-man test although Detroit's list of "cripples" includes Hank Greenberg, Eddie Mayo and Hal Newhouse. All three may see action in today's double-header but none of the trio is at his peak.

Tight Squeaks
Both contenders had tight squeaks yesterday, the Tigers downing Philadelphia, 1-0, in a game cut to five innings by rain and decided by one lucky run. Washington had to come up with three in the last of the ninth to trim Cleveland, 6-5.

Just when the Senators' fans had given up on their club, trailing Cleveland, 5-3, with one out and nobody on in the ninth, the challengers started to rally. Joe Kuhel's triple, two singles, a walk, and Al Chocki's error tied the score. Then reliever Pete Carter walked George Case with the bases loaded to lose the game.

St. Louis swept a three-game set from Boston, 4-1, tightening their grip on third place via Jack Miller's five-hit chucking. A New York-Chicago series finale was washed out by the books.

Orrtanna Wins On 9th Inning Rally

Orrtanna defeated Fairfield in a baseball game played last Sunday at Fairfield 13-10. The victors tallied four runs in the ninth after one was to score a victory.

Both teams hit hard with K. Deardorff, C. Rebert and B. Sease each polling three hits for Orrtanna while Bud Sease, who recently returned from overseas, collected three safeties for Fairfield. Two servicemen on leave hurried for Fairfield, Wayne McGlaughlin pitching the first eighth inning with Jim Donaldson pitching the final. Capt. Donald Lowe, Fairfield first baseman, contributed the fielding play of the game on a one-handed stab of B. Deardorff's drive.

K. Deardorff and C. Rebert hurried for Orrtanna with J. Wetzel catching. Welkert and Shultz shared the catching for Fairfield.

'WORMS FOR SALE'
When along the road go I
Or some country trail,
Nowadays this sign I spy:
"Worms for sale!"

Letters turned the wrong way
round
Like a rusty nail,
Telling in the shack are found:
"Worms for sale!"

Years ago when early I Went for pan fish big
Ere I bade the shore good bye
Worms I had to dig.

Now the clan of rod and line
Fixed to wall or rail
Merely watches for the sign:
"Worms for sale!"

Today's Talk

THE ENRICHMENT OF EXPRESSION

Expression is life. The first efforts of the child are those for expression. And all through life there is this constant urge to express ourselves in some way or other. It's our tribute to our Creator.

We marvel at the power of speech and expression of Winston Church-hill, but we forget how varied in experience his life has been. He has been a leader in politics for many years. He is the author of many notable books. And he is an artist of distinction, a hobby taken up because he wished that much more expression to his talents. And he is a lover of flowers and an authority on gardens. In addition to this he has always been a student of human nature.

In the genius we find all expression. One or more hobbies are fine mediums of expression. They enrich the mind to an unusual degree because they are usually centered upon some idea that is full of interest, and highly absorbing.

People who have a talent for poetry, writing, or painting, should give expression to this gift, even though it may never reward them in a monetary way. It will be quite enough to have given vent to an inborn gift for self-expression, which is the important thing.

I have a doctor friend who has made stones a hobby. He has an interesting collection, and knows them better than some parents know their children! Then I have another friend, a great newspaper publisher, whose gardens and flowers absorb months of his time and attention during the year. His home is planted in the heart of a garden.

The only way we have of revealing ourselves to the world, or to our friends, is through some form of personal expression. But whatever it may be, it is sure to enrich the soul and spirit of the one who expresses himself. And he needn't be ashamed of that expression,
either, for it is something that God planted in him.

STATE PLANS BRIDGE REPAIR AND BUILDING

Harrisburg, Sept. 15 (AP)—Bridge construction and repair is one of the problems looming largest in the postwar planning of the state Department of Highways.

"We have some 4,000 bridges on state highways and practically all of them need something done to them," said Secretary John U.
Shroyer today. "They range from eight to 12 foot spans over small streams in rural areas to bridges
over large rivers."

The wear and tear of wartime
truck travel at a time when labor and materials for bridge repairs were hard to get has built up a big backlog of necessary work on bridges. How much has not been estimated, Shroyer said.

"The trucks are going everywhere
now," he explained. "There isn't any section that is not affected and every community is clamoring for work on their bridges first."

Maintenance Cost
On top of this problem is another created for the department by transfer of all bridges on state highways
in third class cities to Commonwealth control with the obligation of maintenance and repair.

"When the proposal was up in the Legislature," Shroyer said, "they told us there were 61 bridges. Now we find there are 202 bridges, running in size from eight to 1,800 feet in length."

He said so far no estimate has been made of what the annual cost of maintenance or repair will be to the state.

That will not be determined,
Shroyer added, until they are all inspected and the engineering force for the job is just not available at present.

Earlier this week Shroyer said 84
projects calling for reconstruction of bridges, including approaches, retaining walls, guard fences and other items, are now under way.
This work will cost more than $1-000,000.

New Oxford

New Oxford.—Miss Marie Geisler
has resumed her duties as teacher
at Gable's schoolhouse, Paradise township, near East Berlin.

Maurice J. Sterner, McSherrys-town, formerly of here, continues to serve as president of the McSherrys-town school board for the 1945-46 term.

Representatives of local organizations conducted a meeting during the week to begin preparations for the presentation of a Victory parade marking the end of war. Saturday,
September 29, is the date selected.

George W. Dunstan, who resides at the Crawford farm, R. 1, lost a valuable gray horse on Saturday
when a veterinarian was forced to destroy the animal whose leg was seriously broken. The accident occurred when Mr. Dunstan's horse was kicked by a horse owned by John Crawford, Hanover, which was being kept at the farm. The Dunstans plan to move shortly to the former Geisler farm near Bonneauville which they purchased in July and are remodeling.

Waynesburg Barns Downed By Storm

Waynesburg, Pa., Sept. 15 (AP)—
A severe wind swept a path about 150 feet wide and about eight miles long through Alleppo township last night, blowing down 15 or 20 barns
and unroofing a number of houses.

Residents described the wind as "funnel-haped and smoky-looking."
It uprooted a number of trees, some falling across roads. No injuries were reported.

In Pittsburg, about 1.5 inches of rain fell during the afternoon and evening.

Chapter 9

General Howard had finished an early dinner. A cigar, coffee and the radio were all that stood between himself and a long, boring
evening.

At that moment, unannounced,
Ramon Delgado walked into the General's quarters and said he'd come for a conference.

"I know you are surprised to see me, General," he said. "But I have been appointed coroner, and I came here for information. The inquest will be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock."

"I heard about your appointment," the General's voice was wary.

"Dolores' death is only one of the reasons I am here this evening," Ramon answered quietly. "I know nothing about Seth Peabody or this mysterious airplane of his.
I want you to tell me what kind of an engine it is, and why it is so important."

The General's iron grey brows were frowning at his visitor. "What has that to do with this girl's death?" he demanded brusquely.

"I think you know the answer to that question, General. Last night you and Suzy both said that Dolores had surprised the person stealing the Van Tyne dossier and that she was killed as a result of this unexpected discovery. That makes this dossier important to me
—a cause of death—and I want to know what that dossier contained that would make anyone murder to get it. That's a fair question, isn't it?"

"Yes, that is an eminently fair
question," the General replied briefly. He had already guessed the truth. Ramon was after Seth Peabody, not the dossier.

"The Van Tyne Aircraft Company has at last perfected an airplane propelled by super-heated steam," he said, after a moment's pause. "After witnessing its test flight, I am sure this is the first practical engine of its kind. It works. It's capable of tremendous speed and it's economical to manufacture. Does that answer your question?"

"Partly. I can see that it is an innovation and valuable. To my non-mechanical mind, it sounds complicated."

"But that's one of its great assets. The Van Tyne engine has 200 fewer parts and is far easier to turn out on the assembly line
than any plane I have yet seen."

"Where does Peabody fit into this picture?"

"The company gives him final credit for perfecting the new engine."

"Does he personally own any of its patents?"

"I don't know anything about the patents. I'm the man who passes on planes of this type for the army."

He saw a half smile of malice
on Ramon's face as the dancer
rose to go. "Thank you, Sir. I guess this about covers it. You have given me the information I needed. I'll see you at the inquest tomorrow.
Goodnight."

"Now why the devil did he ask about patents? He's up to something," the General ejaculated as he lost no time in following his unexpected visitor out of Fort Schuyler. Within fifteen minutes he was talking to Seth on Flagler Avenue at the entrance to the driveaway of the Casa Linda.

"Watch your step tomorrow at the inquest," the General's voice was emphatic. He told Seth Ramon's appointment as coroner had been no particular surprise to him
as he had served in this capacity
on two previous occasions. "My impression is the whole proceedings will be something of a farce—except —where you are concerned."

"I know," Seth answered stiffly and then lapsed into silence. The General eyed him speculatively. "All witnesses checked into the hotel
tonight?" he asked.

Seth nodded. "Yes. But something's going on here that I don't like. I have a persistent feeling that more disaster is on its way,
and I don't know how to stop it."

Back of the two men, at the end of the driveway the great white hotel looked like a painted backdrop in the blackness of the tropical night. Suddenly a small yellow roadster dashed out of the darkness at the end of Flagler Avenue, raced through a red light
and disappeared, going East.

The General clutched Seth's arm.
"Look—that roadster—did you see him? It's Potter."

While a leap as agile as a young man, the General was in his car and the motor was racing. An instant later with Seth beside him,
he had the powerful car swinging
down the avenue, after the battered jalopy.

"We'll get him before he hits
the Overseas Highway," the General shouted, oblivious to everything but the swaying roadster now turning out into Roosevelt Boulvard in front of the radio station.

The General raced his big car past
the smaller one and then began to edge it over toward the curb.
Half a block from the Overseas
Highway the driver of the smaller car jammed down his brakes and Potter jumped out, swearing loudly
until he saw the General and Seth.
Then he stopped abruptly.

They ran back and faced Pot-

Chapter 10

Rain, like invisible fingers, was tapping on his windows, when Seth awakened the next morning. The persistent sense of disaster he had felt the night before came back to him as he sat smoking an hour later in the lobby, waiting for the mail to be distributed.

He had a growing concern about Suzy. Twenty-four hours had passed since he had seen her. He had left telephone messages but she had evaded him all of Sunday. She and Ramon went off together after breakfast, and he had not seen her since. Wallis told him at dinner in the evening that she had seen the two of them deep in conversation
at Paul's Club on Roosevelt Boulvard late in the afternoon.

Seth tried to rationalize his anxiety by reassuring himself that Ramon would skim over a lot of things as far as Suzy was concerned at the inquest that afternoon—that was something. But what about Suzy's attitude toward the dancer? It was becoming very apparent that she was spending far more time with Ramon these days
than she was with Seth, and there was a double kick to that.

He had been reading for about ten minutes when he looked up and saw Potter walking very rapidly down the lobby.

"Hi, Potter. How's the headache
this morning?"

"Oh, it's you, Peabody." The man's voice showed he was startled.
He was also annoyed. His annoyance was so evident, Seth's curiosity got the better of him, and he decided to detain him for a minute or two. He had more than a passing interest in where he was going in such a hurry.

Potter was panting a little as he stood in front of Seth. He could see the man was making an effort to be pleasant.

"Headache's better, thanks. But I was sure burnt up with the General last night. Cripes! Here was I, trying to do my Boy Scout good deed for the day, taking some groceries to an aunt on Crawl Key who phoned me she was all out of ration points—when that big stiff comes along and starts playing cops and robbers. If he hadn't been a General, I think I'd have punched his nose."

"That's a fast one," Seth thought
as he lit another cigarette.
"He's lying and he isn't very good at it."

"Better sit down and take the weight off your feet," Seth replied
amiably. "Nothing to do this morning but wait for the mail. Fog's getting worse."

"Yeah, that's a fact." Potter slid into a chair beside Seth, his bulk completely filling it. "This looks like an all-day rain. It's a damned nuisance, sticking around like this for the inquest."

"That'll soon be over," Seth noticed the way Potter watched both entrances. Suddenly it occurred to him that Jesus or Faustus should be in the lobby, watching this man.
Cobo was careless. If he wasn't careful, Potter would get away
again, and he knew if he did, this time they wouldn't catch up with him. Seth signaled the bell captain.

"Jim, get this number for me on the telephone, will you?" He tore off a corner of his newspaper and hastily scribbled the General's telephone number on it. "Call me

when the party answers."

"Yes, sir. Here's yo' mail, sir."
"Thank you. Hurry, please."

As the bell captain went off,
Potter said, "God, it's dull down here when it rains. Nothing to do.
Guess I'll get Wallis and go down to the club. We might stay there for lunch."

"Nice girl," Seth volunteered, hoping he could keep Potter in the lobby until Cobo or one of his men showed up. . . .
"Yes but as far as I can see,
just the bungalow type. All modern conveniences, but no heat. Nice enough," Potter heaved himself up out of his chair. "There's your call.
I guess I'll blow. See you later."

By the time Seth reached the telephone booth, Potter had disappeared from the lobby.

The General's secretary answered his call. She said the General was on his way over to the hotel with a man from the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Seth waited in the lobby for half an hour before he saw the men coming through the driveway entrance.

The General's introduction was brief. As the two men shook hands, he said briefly, "Gardner don't let Seth Peabody out of your sight. The situation here is serious. Unless we all have a determined control of events within the next 24 hours, I'm afraid there will be another murder."

Seth looked at him in amazement. "You don't really mean that, General!"

"Never was more serious in my life. And you're worried too. I can see it in your face."

"Well, you're right," Seth admitted quickly, his eyes on the garden entrance where Potter had disappeared. "I've been waiting in this lobby for Jesus or Faustus to show up. They should tell Potter every minute."

There was a sudden commotion down at the end of the lobby and the three men turned simultaneously to see Jesus running toward them.

"Here comes the bad news now,"
Seth exclaimed in a low voice.

"Henry Potter—he gone," Jesus gasped. He was frightened and showed it.

General Howard clutched his shoulder. "Gone, you idiot!" he roared. "He should never have been out of your sight."

"Yes, sir. I ran. Faustus ran.
But Potter ran in garden back of hedge. Fog very thick. We look and look. Faustus find clothes."

"What do you mean—find clothes?"
"On fishing pier—pants and coat.
He gone in sea."

"Is the man a good swimmer?"
Gardner asked.

"Better than average, I believe,"

Seth answered quickly. "He's probably making for a boat anchored off the beach, and if he's lucky and has a sense of direction, he'll make it. He's gone for good this time."

The safety outlook continues to be everybody's lookout.

Before You Align

Any car's front end is sensitive, and that means great care must be taken when checking alignment. Where one system is used, for instance, the rear must be raised the same as the front even if the front is lifted merely the thickness of a heavy board. Before anything is done to the front end it is always necessary to check the wheels for looseness and to inspect the wheel bearings. Also any looseness in the king pins or bushings should also be noted. One thing many people overlook is "run out" of the wheel rims. The rims should run true when wheels are spun.

First Things First

Free flowing gasoline might have been expected to bring on a flood of automobile ailments, but an unexpected problem for many a motorist is what to do when the car seems to need just about everything in the way of repairs. Here we have to go back to first principles and remember to take first things first. Some owners have confessed to me that they have so many things wrong with their cars they just don't know what to start with first. This is simply a confession of ignorance of things that are basic. In the interests of their own and others' welfare they should correct anything about the car that concerns safety brakes, steering, windshield wipers, horns, lighting equipment and wheel bearings. Performance can come next, including ignition, valves, timing, cooling, carburetion. Finally, you can get down to the finer points such as fuel and oil economy, accuracy of the gauges, elimination of noises, and the minor adjustments.

Odd Noises Silenced

Having had some luck in getting rid of noises I thought I should pass along the symptoms and the remedies. First was a baffling rear end squeak. It sounded like a squeaky spring or a dry shackle. I finally located a spot where the gas filler pipe rubbed against the fender, and cured it by a few drops of oil. The other noise sounded like a heavy spot on a tire or a broken bearing. It turned out to be buckling of the large chrome hubs over one of the front wheels. I took it off and replaced it again. That was just enough to make a difference!

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"Now that so many scarce repair parts are coming along freely there is a lot to be said for the precaution against assuming that replacing just one part of the old bus is going to give it new vim and vigor. Rejuvenation of one function of the car may immediately show up weaknesses in other parts.

"It is important to replace functions rather than parts. I recall the case of a customer who had all new valves and valve springs installed. The engine displayed marked improvement in pep. He began driving faster and immediately ran into greatly increased oil consumption. Then the inefficiency of braking showed up. Soon he was in for a lot of other service work. New brake lining and trued drums made braking actually better than ever. He again overdid it, and found himself with a set of drums that had warped again. Any car's parts are so closely related you have to figure that the vigor of any one is going to show up the weaknesses of another. The answer, of course, is balance."

Stop, Look and Figure

Chatting with a body man I picked up the tip to stop the car whenever there is evidence that you have backed into something or are scraping against another car or some standing object. He says that most people get panicky and immediately try to pull away, and that in this process they inflict most of the injury. Sometimes after studying the situation it becomes evident that the easiest way out is to continue backing. Or perhaps trouble can be lessened by having someone stand on the bumper. Apparently it's the second whang that pulls a repair bill.

Hot Plugs and Cold

Do you have trouble remembering the difference between a cold plug and a hot one?

Perhaps it will help you to think of plugs in terms of their relative ability to carry heat from their points to the engine head into which they are screwed. Naturally a short plug provides a quicker travel path. So a short plug is a cold one. Obviously it is for use in an engine which tends to overheat the plugs.

A hot plug is one with a longer path for heat to travel to the carry-away point. This type of plug is excellent for use in an engine that tends to foul the plug points, for the hotter the points the cleaner they stay.

I've been trailing behind many a car that was missing from the road during gas rationing but I am surprised that there are not more smoking exhausts. . . . Prewar engines must have been better than we gave them credit for being. . . . Watch those backwoods gas pumps which may have water in them when pumped low. . . . Recent contrasts on the road were a Model T to old its doors were held shut by coil springs hooked to the dash and a V-16 convertible coupe that quickly came out of retirement when the war ended. . . . Watch for sudden stops at antique shops and wayside auctions. . . . Everywhere you go now it becomes increasingly evident that the automobile still is a pleasure car to most people of the time, regardless of its service to humanity.

That it is better to use the same brand of engine lubricating oil rather than to take whatever the filling station has on hand.

That a loose battery won't last as long as one that is properly fastened down in its holder. Bouncing loosens the active materials from battery plates, allowing it to settle at the bottom of the cells.

Why the Fireworks

When there are explosions in the exhaust system as you lift your foot from the accelerator pedal when going downhill things are not right in the engine. Unburned gas vapor is getting into the heated exhaust where it fires with the characteristic tall pipe fireworks. The question then is: how does this vapor get into the exhaust? Or why doesn't it burn up inside the cylinders?

There are three ways for it to escape. First, and the most probable, is that some of the plugs fail to fire when the throttle is closed, allowing unburned gas vapor to escape into the exhaust system. Second, there may be some valve stick-age, thus preventing some of the vapor from remaining inside the cylinders under compression. And third, the carburetor mixture may be too lean or too rich. Either extreme of mixture will result in incomplete combustion inside the cylinders.

East Berlin

East Berlin—Mr. and Mrs. S. David Wisler, R. 2, have received word their son, John, U.S.A. who has been stationed in Germany, is now en route to the United States. He entered service early in 1943.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Gochenour and daughter, Dolores, plan to move in a few weeks from the Peter W. Kimmel property where they have lived for several years, to the property they recently purchased from J. Firmin Myers. Mr. Myers, who has been residing in that property and whose wife died in August, will make his home with the Gochenours.

Mrs. Lucinda Baker, who moved in July to make her home with Dillsburg relatives, was a recent visitor of former local neighbors.

Improvement is reported in the condition of Mrs. Claude Messinger, who has been a surgical patient at the Hanover hospital and seriously ill.

Mrs. Garcia Bechtel Kunkel, R. 3, has received word her youngest son, Earl, is with the army at Miami, Fla. Mrs. Kunkel has four other sons in the armed forces.

Lemuel Bosserman, Barnesboro, was a recent visitor in this section. He is a son of the late Amos L. Bosserman, this place.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brady, Brunswick, Md., and William S. Elgin, U.S.A., Fort Meade, Md., spent the week-end with Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Elgin, and family.

Sherman Eisenhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Eisenhart, R. 3, who was blinded in his left eye and seriously wounded while with the Marines at Okinawa, has returned home from the Philadelphia Naval hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Livingston, who recently sold their R. 2 farm to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Boyer, plan to make their home within a few months at the house they purchased Saturday at public sale from the estate of Mrs. Laura Trostle Hoover. They paid $4,500. Mrs. Hoover's household effects were also sold Saturday with a large attendance at the sale and good prices realized.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice D. Bosserman have received word their son, Melvin, who has been with the army in the South Pacific for some time, is now at Luzon.

Mrs. Charles Joseph Delone, with her niece, of Hanover, were visitors in this section on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Heisler, York, were guests of her sister, Mrs. C. Elmer Lease, and Mr. Lease, during the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Jacobs have been entertaining their granddaughter, Frances Hertz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hertz, Jr., near Harrisburg.

Mrs. Sadie Darone and son, Kenneth H. Darone, recently discharged from the army, had as guests during the week these relatives: Mr. and Mrs. E. Maxton Darone and daughter, Erie; Mrs. Lottie Darone and grandson, Maxton Willet, Hanover, and Harry Myers, York.

Mrs. Grace Baker Bosserman has begun her teaching duties at the Picketts schoolhouse, York county.

Victor Altland, Spring Grove, was a visitor in this section during the week.

Price Controls On Food Will Remain

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP)—OPA officials predicted Friday that there can be no large-scale removal of food price controls before next spring.

They said that so far as they can tell now last night's suspension of price ceilings on white potatoes does not indicate a trend for other market basket commodities.

The action on potatoes was taken because supply is the largest in years and because they have been selling below ceilings in a number of areas.

Controls were suspended for the period through October 25. If prices should rise significantly before that time, ceilings will be re-invoked. If they stay down, the suspension may become a cancellation.

RUPTURE
SHIELD EXPERT HERE

H. M. SHEVNAN, widely known expert of Chicago, will personally be at the Gettysburg Hotel, Gettysburg, Thursday only, Sept. 20, 9 A. M. to 4 P. M.

Mr. Shevnan says: The Zetec Shield is a tremendous improvement over all former methods, effecting immediate results. It will not only hold the rupture perfectly no matter the size or location but it will increase the circulation, strengthen the weakened parts, and thereby close the opening in ten days on the average case, regardless of heavy lifting, straining or any position the body may assume. A nationally known scientific method. No under straps or cumbersome arrangements and absolutely no medicines or medical treatments.

Mr. Shevnan will be glad to demonstrate without charge.

the engine warms up, you'll know for sure that there is a piston slap. If the noise is due to a valve tappet the cold operation won't make it much louder.

Q. What would cause a whistling noise in the engine? I notice this when accelerating or when pushing the engine on a hill. There doesn't seem to be anything in need of oil or grease as I have had the engine carefully checked over. A. P. S.

A. This indicates an external leak in the cylinder head gasket. When pressure is highest in the cylinders some combustion gas escapes and makes a whistling noise. A new gasket is the answer.

Q. One brake on my car always seems to take hold before the others, although the braking system has been serviced several times. Have you any idea what would cause this? F. McN., Jr.

A. This could be due to one of the brake lines being clogged, throwing more pressure to the opposite side of the car. Or the drum of the misbehaving brake could be out of round so that clearances are not accurate. Tires have something to do with unequal braking; that is, their tread pattern and pressure.

Q. I have spent a lot of money trying to get the engine of my car running smoothly, but it is always lacking in performance. Compression is good, and I have practically all new ignition parts. W. L. T.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

One of the most colorful action romances to come out of Hollywood in a long time will appear on the screen of the Majestic theatre Monday when Universal's "Sudan" opens here. Filmed in technicolor, with the intriguing locale obvious in the title, "Sudan" co-stars Maria Montez, Jon Hall and Turner Hall. Features an excellent supporting cast including Andy Devine, George Zucco, George Lynn, Robert Warwick, Harry Cording.

Based on an original play by Edmund L. Hartmann, this Paul Malvern production tells the story of Nalla, spirited daughter of the King of Khemini, who is found mysteriously murdered at the picture's opening. Nalla mounts her father's throne, but the royal chamberlain plots to acquire it for himself.

WEDNESDAY

Chad P. Douglas' "North West Mounted Police" a stirring motion picture story of the gallantry and heroism with which a small force of the Mounted faced thousands of murderous half-breeds in what amounted to Canada's Civil War will play a return engagement on Wednesday at the Majestic theatre. It stars Gary Cooper and Madeline Carroll, and features a host of other stars including Pauline Goddard, Preston Foster, Robert Preston, Alvin Tamirol, Lynne Overman, George Bancroft, Lon Chaney, Jr., Walter Hampden, and thousands of others. Filmed in technicolor—it was the first picture in which DeMille employed color throughout—"North West Mounted Police" traces the effects of the half-breeds' rebellion on the lives of countless thousands of people.

THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY

John Garfield who portrays Sgt. Al Schmid in "Pride of the Marines."

A stirring tribute to a gallant American, a living testimonial to his courage and to the way of life he fought to defend, is presented in Warner's "Pride of the Marines," which opens Thursday at the Majestic theatre. Starring John Garfield as hero Al Schmid, Marine, Eleanor Walker and Dana Clark, the film is his own story of love, action and adventure.

"Pride of the Marines" tells the moving saga of Al Schmid's amazing and flamboyant life, from his early days as a machinist in Philadelphia, to a Marine hero and beloved soldier of a nation. Grippingly portrayed are his one-man stand on island of Guadalcanal, his struggle for happiness and security and the peace he finds in the arms of the girl who waited for his return.

York Springs

York Springs — Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Neely, James Neely, and the Rev. Paul B. Denlinger, have returned after a short trip to Ocean City, N. J.

Miss Myrtle Diller, who has been suffering with an eye ailment for some time, has been a patient at the Wills Eye hospital, Philadelphia.

Miss Mae Gardner, a former resident of town, who has been residing with Philadelphia relatives, is a visitor in this section.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hale, now here, have received word that Vernon Hale, one of their two sons in the armed forces, is stationed at Salina.

Mrs. Isaac Lohmer, Dillsburg, was a guest teacher on Sunday morning at the Lower Merion Lutheran Sunday school, near here.

Mrs. Gertrude Hooper, formerly of here, who moved to Houtan in the spring, has been seriously ill at the Carlisle hospital. Mrs. Hooper is suffering with a blood stream infection.

Charles Chubb, Jr., and family have purchased the Daniel Embo property near here and plan to move there later this fall. The Chubbs, formerly of East Berlin, have been spending the summer in a trailer in Abbottstown.

Will Not Close Schools For Polio

Harrisburg, Sept. 15 (AP)—The state health department does not anticipate closing any schools as a result of an outbreak of infantile paralysis now centered in five southern Pennsylvania counties.

"We did this some years ago," said Dr. J. Moore Campbell, deputy secretary of health, "but last year in an epidemic year we decided we were not going to get hysterical."

The current outbreak, said Dr. Campbell, is centered around Philadelphia where 100 cases were reported up to September 12. Montgomery, Delaware, Bucks and Chester counties along with Philadelphia have accounted for more than two-thirds of the state's 976 cases reported so far this year.

Dr. Campbell said the peak has not been reached and he "would not be surprised if the total reaches 500 or 600."

SERVICE SWITCH

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP)—Lawrence T. Coffey, 24, an ex-army sergeant and veteran of five battles and 30 months overseas service, now is a navy man. He was honorably discharged from the army a couple of months ago but he has a brother in the navy so he has decided to enlist for four years.

Weeks In Dry Beans And Peas

If the strange theory which many persons hold concerning the small weevils often found in stored dry beans and peas were true, the fact would immediately flash around the world as the greatest news story of all recorded time—for it would truly be a miracle, the first instance of inanimate matter taking on the form of animate life. Yet, thousands of farmers and gardeners hold implicitly to this theory.

Believe the story is this: When growers discover dark "bugs" unearthing their way from dried beans or peas in storage or see shadowy forms embedded beneath the unbroken grain husks, they take for granted that the grain germ has quite easily and naturally turned into a living, breathing, moving insect. How much brighter than the name of Columbus, Copernicus or Galileo would shine that of the man who could point to bits of such occurrence!

Why does this theory persist?

For decades and decades growers have been mystified as to how the little weevil gets into a bean or pea in order to make his first visible debut by escaping. Nobody has discovered, so these persons assume, any case of a weevil eating its way into a bean or pea. So they reason, to come out, the weevil must first enter. And as it is never seen entering, it must be in the grain originally. Hence, some one carries the error one step further and declares that the grain germ is the true origin of the pest, that the germ actually turns into a "bug."

A Few Facts

Here, therefore, are a few plain facts about this universal "mystery." There are two species of weevils common to gardeners and unearthing beans, the other confining its resources almost entirely to peas. The female bean weevil visits growing bean plants when the pods are partly formed and pushes her way into the soft pods. The female pea weevil may arrive when the first peas are in bloom and feed for several days on the foliage to await the appearance of the pods. Then she deposits her eggs on the small pod surfaces. In the case of beans, the grubs hatching from the weevil eggs find themselves already inside their home and soon penetrate the tiny beans; grubs of the pea weevil must burrow into the pod to feed until pods begin to form. Of course, all details of these pests and their habits are not clearly known. There

Is bit one brood of pea weevil each year, while there may be four to six generations of bean weevil in this latitude, all but the first developing after the grain is stored. For students who wish to distinguish between these pests, the bean weevil is named Acanthoscelus ides obiectus, the pea weevil is Bruchus pisorum.

No measures are effective unless bean and pea weevils in garden and field. But safeguards should be raised before the dry grain is placed in storage. Heating for five to six hours at a temperature of 120 to 130 degrees will destroy the undeveloped weevil grubs, although, of course, extreme care is necessary in this treatment of seed supplies. Many growers prefer the carbon disulphide fumigation, both for seed and food beans and peas.

Readers may obtain full details of the recommended fumigation treatment on request to the editor. Of course, all related questions will be gladly answered.
